

Long Range Planning

Teachers Learning Content

Teachers need to learn the content they are going to present.

This is vital!

though it sometimes takes a while...

Selection of Learning Targets

Decide what is important to teach in the content are you have selected.

The State and National Standards should be consulted here.

School district or publishers' scope and sequence charts may provide a start

Development of Assessments

Decide how to find out whether your students have learned the concepts you have selected. What evidence will you require that your students have learned the target concepts and are able to use this understanding to solve problems?

Selection of Instructional Activities

Decide how to teach these important concepts. What are the activities that your students will undertake in order to construct their understanding of the target concepts?

Evaluation of the Quality and Equity of the Process.

During and after the process, think about whether it is working for everyone.
